

Introduction of the Financial Capability and Asset Building (FCAB) Initiative for Social Workers in Singapore

21 February 2017 | 1.30 PM to 5.30 PM |

Lecture Theatre 12 , Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, National University of Singapore

EVENT HIGHLIGHTS

The NUS Next Age Institute in collaboration with Washington University in St. Louis, will be introducing a new initiative to develop Singapore's curriculum on Financial Capability and Asset Building (FCAB) for use by social workers in their work with low income vulnerable families on managing their household finances. The Singapore FCAB curriculum will also be used for social work education at the National University of Singapore.

The event includes a workshop titled: "Social Work Intervention with Low-income Families: Issues and Challenges on Building Financial Capabilities". The workshop serves as a platform for social workers and academics to discuss research findings and social work interventions in uplifting low income vulnerable families. The knowledge and insights gained will contribute to the curriculum development.
