

Critical Discourse Analysis for Social Services (5 & 6 August 2024)

Course Description:

Critical Discourse Analysis (CDA) is a useful framework to uncover and examine power relations and social inequalities reflected through discourses, language and texts. This is an introductory course on using CDA not just to analyse texts and discourses, but as a tool to conceptualise and develop research projects that aim to uncover or resist the reproduction of existing power inequalities.

Workshop participants learn to analyse the meanings and appreciate the socio-political contexts behind texts, especially in newspapers and public media. In examining how public knowledge and dominant narratives are being produced and reproduced, participants will be guided to think through the role that research development processes, as well as the dissemination of research findings, play in knowledge production that generate “facts” or “truths” in the public domain. In particular, research about marginalised groups and social services need to be mindful about how existing power relations are perpetuated through such research development. Participants are challenged to rethink and suggest ways to overcome or resist the perpetuation of narratives that maintain or deepen the oppression of marginalised groups through research.

Course Objectives:

- Understand the fundamental theories about power relations underlying CDA.
- Learn to deconstruct and analyse texts from the media using CDA.
- Learn how dominant narratives and social inequalities are perpetuated through the research processes.
- Suggest ways to uncover or resist the perpetuation of inequalities through how research processes are being conceptualised and conducted.

Participants conducting research projects in social and public services can apply these skills and knowledge to their research involving marginalised groups, to mitigate the power imbalance against them.

Course Schedule:

- 5 & 6 August 2024, 9:00AM-6:00PM (please attend both dates)

The workshop will be conducted in-person at the NUS Kent Ridge Campus (The Shaw Foundation Building, Block AS7). Participants will be informed of the venue after their registration is confirmed.

Pre-requisites:

At least a university degree in any discipline, with preference given to social science and community health disciplines and at least 2 years of working experience in the social service sector.

Who Should Attend:

Social workers, policy-makers, counsellors, community psychologists, community and allied health professionals. All other professionals and practitioners in the social service and community health sectors, particularly those working in multi-disciplinary teams.

Trainers:

Dr Xu Jianbin is a Research Fellow at the Social Service Research Centre (SSR), NUS. He holds a PhD in Social Work from NUS. His research interests include exploring the role of spirituality in ageing and examining the application of mindfulness, narrative therapy, and existential therapy in the social work context. He enjoys mining the nuggets of meaning and insight from the bonanzas of qualitative data.

Ms Nurul Fadiyah Johari is a Research Associate at the Social Service Research Centre (SSR), NUS. She obtained her Master of Arts degree in Malay Studies from NUS. Her research interests include the interplay of power and ideology in the construction of dominant narratives on socio-economic issues, as well as the intersection of socio-economic class, ethnicity and gender in the shaping of policies and their impact on marginalised communities.
